REPORT.

EVERY addition to our knowledge of the actual condition of mankind deepens the painful conviction which the Bible authorises, of the total depravity of mankind. The course of actions flowing from so corrupt a source is in melancholy consistency with this conclusion. These representations need not for a moment diminish our belief in the skill and ingenuity, for common purposes, which some portions of the earth's population are known to possess. But, notwithstanding, the total absence of all correct views of the vital truths of morality and religion, abundantly shows the correctness of the divinely-inspired assertions: "The world by wisdom knew not God; They know not, neither do they understand; they walk on in darkness." The cruelty and confusion, the vice and suffering of those who are ignorant of God, and of Jesus Christ whom he hath sent, are most appalling to all that have the privilege of being daily visited by the rays of the Sun of Righteousness. Of Christians, indeed, it can be no longer said, "the way of peace have they not known:" but of all beside it is mournfully true, "destruction and misery are in their paths."

The character of the Universal Governor, partially disclosed by his works, is clearly developed in the Holy Scriptures. Thence it appears, that "the Lord is good to all, and his tender mercies are over all his works." Why then, it may be enquired, is it yet necessary to deplore so bitterly the demonstrated condition of mankind? Is it supposable that in the boundless resources of divine wisdom, no effectual remedy could be consistently provided? The contrary of this supposition is the undoubted truth. God has vouchsafed to man, a medicine for his moral diseases, a cordial for his multiplied distresses, and the amplest information on those things essentially belonging to our peace. This treasure we happily possess in the Divine word. Nor must we think it bestowed on us for our own sakes exclusively. The mighty donation is entrusted to us with this responsible charge: "Freely ye have received, freely give." With these matters we require to be more deeply impressed. Indeed, they should be the continued springs of every philanthropic movement. We require hourly to apprehend, with the most complete conviction, that all scripture is given by inspiration of God, and, when it is correctly known, and practically regarded, a great proportion of human ills is wholly prevented, and others, to an equal amount, are softened and sanctified.

Reason alone might justify this opinion, concerning the results of knowledge imparted by the God of truth and love. Still it would be hypothesis only. But when tested by experience, and observed to be declared in that revelation itself, the opinion instantly assumes the unflinching character of certainty. Indeed, how shall man cleanse his ways from enormous sins and equal sorrow, but by taking heed thereto according to God's word? And the diffusion of scriptural knowledge is laid upon Christians, in their individual and collective capacity, by their glorious Head. Hence, whether we consider the blessed effects of the spread of saving truth, or the high authority by which it is enjoined upon us, every rightly informed mind will embrace, with peculiar satisfaction, the opportunities providentially afforded, of accelerating the period wherein all shall know the Lord from the least even unto the greatest. Of the divinely sanctioned means to this end, none seem to be either more appropriate or successful than those of modern Missionary enterprises. The work, truly, is of so arduous a nature, and is impeded by such obstacles, that many a man of God has gone forth to his allotted task weeping, yet bearing precious seed—he has ultimately returned with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him.

The Parent Society with which this Auxiliary is connected, proceeds with its zealous and well directed endeavours for the extension of the kingdom of Christ. The patronage it has received from the Christian public, and the growing fruit of its labours, inspire great encouragement; whilst the numerous openings for multiplied agents, and a diversified application of its principles, connected with their inability to meet every case in which assistance is implored, lay it under deep and anxious responsibility. When, however, the necessities of the world shall be fully understood, and our duty in the case scripturally pointed out, it is anticipated, that means will not long be wanting to enable them, with promptitude, and satisfactorily, to respond to many a Macedonian cry, Come over and help us.

As usual, we shall endeavour to give a brief sketch of the principal stations occupied by the Society. Though these are found in all the great divisions of the globe, the limits of this Report will not admit of more than a passing notice of the most prominent among them. We shall commence with those in EUROPE.

IRELAND.—The central stations in Ireland extend from the extreme north to the south of the island. Consequently, they embrace a vast extent of country, which otherwise would be very scantily supplied with Protestant teaching. The official returns afford pleasing evidence that the Missionaries have an encouraging degree of success. The number of day schools in connexion with the Mission in Ireland, has been increased to thirty-seven, in which upwards of five thousand adults and children are receiving a Christian education.

In SWEDEN, Mr. Scott's ministry has been owned of God in the conversion of many from the error of their ways—who, although not formed into a separate society, meet together for the purpose of Christian edification and prayer. Mr. Scott's great object has been to promote a revival of pure and experimental religion in the national church of Sweden; and most happy will it be if that church cherish the gracious influences now obviously at work in her communion.

GERMANY.—The indefatigable labours of the Society's Agent at Winnenden in the Kingdom of Wirtemberg, have been signally accompanied by the Divine blessing. A great extension of the work has taken place. Upwards of two hundred and fifty persons have been added to the Society, and eighty religious services are held weekly in forty-one places.

FRANCE.—The state and prospects of the Missions in France afford more than ordinary satisfaction. An unusual measure of success has been vouchsafed to the labours of the Missionaries; so that there has been a net increase to the societies of more than two hundred members. The number of children in the schools exceed a thousand. In the South, new openings for usefulness present themselves, and, were sufficient means at command, the work might be prosecuted on a much larger scale.

SPAIN.—The hopes which were indulged last year with respect to Cadiz have not been realised. An opposing influence has been employed, which, for the present, has so far proved successful, that the Missionaries have been banished from the place. The Government would not allow even that one of them should remain, for the purpose of administering to the religious wants of their own countrymen on board the vessels which frequent that port. The labours of the Missionaries, however, have not been thrown away. Several of the Spaniards have furnished proof that they had not received the grace of God in vain, and that a work has commenced which it is fervently hoped persecution may not be permitted to destroy.

At GIBRALTAR, the Mission is in a prosperous state, in both the English and Spanish departments of the work. The members of society are ninety-three in number, and there are two hundred and fourteen scholars in the schools.

CEYLON AND CONTINENTAL INDIA.

In SOUTH CEYLON, there has been an increase of seventy-two to the number of communicants, chiefly from the Burghers and native population: making a total in Christian communion with the Missionaries of the Society, of seven hundred and sixty-one—a number which may be justly considered as large, when regarded in connexion with the character previously impressed upon the inhabitants of the country by a spurious Christianity, and an atheistic heathenism. The native Assistant Missionaries, the fruit of Missionary teaching in the island, are nearly double the number of those sent out by the Parent Society.

The Missions in NORTH CEYLON are also accomplishing much benefit for the places in which they are established. The congregations attending public worship have increased, and the more private means of grace appear to be duly valued by those who have been gathered into the Christian Church. At the same time, it is very apparent, that the minds of the Heathen are in a state of awful apathy on the subject of true religion. The Missionaries call on the Church of Christ to unite with them in earnest prayers for an effusion of the Holy Ghost, that the souls slain by idolatry may live, and rise up a great army in the service of the Lord of Hosts.

The Schools in Ceylon have always formed an important part of the Mission work. At present, the Schools are upwards of seventy, containing more than five thousand four hundred children, some hundreds of whom are girls. The Schools are conducted by eighty-four teachers, all supported by the Society.

Continental India.—Our Missionaries on the continent of India are pursuing their arduous task among the various tribes and classes of the inhabitants among whom they are placed, with unabated zeal. They rest on the scriptural assurance, that the Son of God shall have these heathen nations for his inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession. Under this conviction, they prosecute their endeavours to enlighten and evangelise the most morally debased and inveterately idolatrous of the human race; and they would not cease to labour, even were there no immediate and visible success as a reward for their sacrifices, privations, and toils. But they are not left without some degree of encouragement. The religious societies which they and their predecessors have gathered from among the heathen, continue faithful in their Christian profession, and receive occasional additions of individuals and families who are saved from the idolatries and corruptions around them. Two very promising young men have been added during the past year to the number of Assistant Missionaries. The Committee rejoice in this increase of the native ministry, as affording a pledge of future prosperity, an indication of the approach of the "set time to favour" the land in which these evangelists labour.

A superior Boys Day School has been commenced at Madras, under the judicious direction of Mr. Crowther. A considerable portion of the expense is borne by the scholars, and a plan is laid down, which, if the means for effecting it can be obtained, is likely to be followed by the best results.

AUSTRALASIA AND POLYNESIA.

New South Wales.—The progress of the Mission in this country has lately been very considerable. New chapels are rising up, new societies and congregations are in the course of formation, and loud calls are made for additional Missionaries. To meet in part the pressing applications for help, two others were lately sent, one of whom will occupy the station recently commenced at Hunter's River. The number of members in society is three hundred and eight; the number of adults and children in the schools is five hundred and eighty-nine.

Australia Felix.—The appearances here are of the most pleasing kind. Since the establishment of the Mission, about twenty-five natives on an average have been living with the Missionaries, and have been supplied with food, and partially with clothing. A number of sheets, containing the alphabet and a few useful words, have been printed in the native language. The natives who reside on the station are regularly taught to work, as also to read, in which they make satisfactory progress.

Although, in consequence of no religious system having previously existed among the natives, there is a deficiency of terms in their language to express ideas on religious subjects, yet some of the fundamental doctrines of scripture have been taught; and the questions to which this instruction has given rise, and the conversations to which it has led among the natives, clearly prove that they understand what has been said to them.

South Australia.—The labours of Mr. Longbottom at this place have been crowned with considerable success. The chapel which had been erected previous to his arrival, soon proved too small; a new one has been built by the liberality of the people, containing sittings for four hundred persons on the ground floor, besides the accommodations afforded by a gallery; and the society has increased two-fold. Mr. Longbottom earnestly desires that one or two more Missionaries may be sent, to enable him to carry out his plans for the benefit of the natives.

Van Dieman's Land.—The Mission in this Colony comprises five principal stations, with which are connected a great number of new and rising settlements—besides the Penal Station of Port Arthur. In addition to these, the Missionaries visit many farming establishments, and thus afford the ordinances of religion to a scattered population, which can only be provided for by an itinerant ministry. The total number of members is five hundred and seventy, and of scholars nine hundred and twenty-two.

NEW ZEALAND.—The various stations in this island had assumed a lovely and promising appearance. Arrangements had been made with the view of giving permanence to the good work which had been wrought, and of extending the evangelising endeavours of the Missionaries. But the sudden and early death of Mr. Bumby, who had been sent out as the General Superintendent, together with the disturbances which have subsequently arisen, have involved the Mission Stations in great disorder, and subjected the Mission families to severe suffering and privation. Antecedently to these things, it is stated,—"The Christian natives increase in knowledge and piety, and evince great zeal for the conversion of their heathen relatives and friends. The public religious services regularly held on the Lord's-day, are well attended. The chapel is usually crowded with hearers, who listen to the word preached with a manifest earnest desire to be made wise unto salvation. The people are also punctual and diligent in attending to their religious duties during the week." Since the number of Missionaries has been increased, two English services on the Sabbath have been regularly held, and once a fortnight the Missionaries go up the Mangamuka to preach to a number of English sawyers, who live at too great a distance otherwise to attend the ministry of God's word.

THE FRIENDLY ISLANDS.—On a careful review of the Missions in the Friendly Islands, the indications of much prosperity are very cheering. Although the Missionaries have had their trials and painful exercises, it has been their consolation to witness their people generally growing in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. The demand for Missionaries in these islands was so urgent, that three additional Missionaries have been sent to them.

FEEJEE.—The state and prospects of this important Mission call for gratitude to Almighty God. The converts to Christianity have generally maintained their steadfastness in the midst of trials and persecution. Within the influence of the Mission at Lakimba, the superstitions of the people have been considerably weakened, and many new openings for usefulness present themselves. Two new stations, named Bau and Somosomo, have been hopefully commenced. Somosomo is the residence of the King and the principal Chiefs. The people are in an awfully degraded state; but the old King having received the Missionaries with kindness, has promised to protect them, and to receive their teaching. Until suitable premises could be erected, the King gave up his own house, to be a residence for the Missionaries.

AFRICA.

South.—Considering the destitution of the means of Christian instruction, which a large portion of the coloured population experience, and that many, having no better religious system, are embracing even Mohammedism rather than remain without any religion—notwithstanding the failure of the health of one of the Missionaries, and the numerous calls from other parts, it was not deemed proper to contract the sphere of the Society's operations in this place. At Stellenbosch, the heathen congregation has improved, and there was a prospect of great good being effected in that part of the Colony among the people of colour.

South Eastern Africa.—The claims of the Missions in South East Africa for more extensive support, which had for some years been gradually increasing in strength, latterly became too urgent to be longer neglected. Through the Divine blessing attending the labours of those Missionaries, whom personal or family affliction had not withdrawn from their post, the work of religion had considerably prospered, and the spirit of enquiry had been so greatly excited amongst the natives, that it became imperatively necessary either to send out additional labourers, or to relinquish, to a painful extent, the important advantages which had been gained, at the cost of so many years of toil and privation, on the part of the Missionaries, and of so great an expenditure of the funds of the Society. A number of well qualified individuals were accordingly selected, some of whom had been employed in the ministry at home, and sent to the Cape—who, it may be presumed, have ere this entered upon their important work, for the successful prosecution of which they had acquired additional facilities during the voyage, by their diligent application to the study of the Kaffer language.

WESTERN AFRICA.—The Mission in this interesting Colony exhibits a very promising appearance. The congregations are large and attentive—the society is increasing, so that, even on the week days, the chapel is often crowded. The numerous week day and Sabbath schools exhibit unprecedented prosperity. Other chapels are being built on land kindly granted by the Governor and Council. The number of members in Sierra Leone is one thousand nine hundred and forty, whilst the children in the schools amount to one thousand and thirty-five.

The most interesting part of the operations on the Gambia is the schools, which, because of the beneficial effects, had secured the patronage of the late Lieutenant Governor Mackie. Many of the scholars were from the liberated African department. In many of them there appear to be very valuable materials for an auxiliary agency to Missions on the benighted continent. A well qualified teacher has been provided for this department, and instructions have been forwarded to the Missionary to place the school in the most eligible condition.

THE GOLD COAST.—The general aspect of the work of God in this dark corner of the earth is of a very cheering character. There has been an addition to the members, and the schools also are rapidly increasing. All things wear a pleasing appearance—some are waiting with solicitude to be admitted into the society—others, who had unhappily proved unstable, are being restored—and the prayer meetings especially are of the most delightful description. Three chapels have lately been completed, in different parts of the circuit. Were there more Missionaries, more teachers, and more money, much, very much more could be done.

Within the past year, a number of Missionaries have been sent to the kingdom of ASHANTEE, intending to commence an establishment in the populous capital of that country, from whence they hope to spread the truth as it is in Jesus, to the surrounding region—for which Divine Providence has apparently furnished the most suitable openings. Already, the number in society at the Gold Coast is six hundred and thirty, and of scholars in the schools two hundred and fifty.

WEST INDIES.

The contrast between the present state and the past history of the Society's Mission in the West Indies, exhibits a striking accomplishment of the prophetic promise, "They that sow in tears shall reap in joy." Long before the wrongs of the West Indian negro had called forth in his behalf that manifestation of national philanthropy which has since cheered and sustained the advocates of his civil rights, the Missionaries of the Society were silently toiling and suffering for his spiritual benefit. But the dark night of the West Indian Missions has passed away; and the Missionaries who fell in the strife have had their reward. In that world where the voice of the oppressor is not heard, they have met multitudes who were saved by their instrumentality, from the bondage of Satan and of sin. And those of the Missionaries of a former day who yet survive, are rejoicing that the word of the Lord has (now) free course and is glorified.

In dwelling upon the prosperity of the West Indian Missions, it will, however, be proper to notice, in order, the encouraging circumstances which offer themselves for consideration. The large accession which has been made to the societies at many stations demands especial attention. A net increase of upwards of five thousand members during the last year has been reported, which makes the total number of members in the West Indies, above 48,000. Of these, 22,884 are in Jamaica, being nearly double the number which was returned for that island in the month of August, 1834, when the Imperial Abolition Act came into operation. It is to be understood that the numbers given are of the full and accredited church members—exclusive of all those who are now on probation for membership, and of the great number of persons who sit under the ministry of the Missionaries, but have not as yet sought for admission into the society, and exclusive also of the children who are under religious instruction in the week-day schools, which amounted to many thousands.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

This section of the vast Missionary field has recently been enlarged by the addition of the extensive territories belonging to the Honourable the Hudson's Bay Company. In these immense regions, ninety Missionaries are appointed to labour; and in chapels, in barns, in the commodious residences of substantial farmers, in the log hut of the poor settler, and not unfrequently beneath the open sky, they announce the evangelical message—thus ministering the word of life to thousands, many of whom, but for them, would have no spiritual guides and instructers. While, therefore, it has pleased the great Head of the Church to employ the Missionaries of this Society, who are stationed in the dark places of the earth, in which idolatry exists under various forms, to bring the first fruits of the benighted heathen in those countries, to the enjoyment of the light and blessedness of the Gospel, we rejoice to state, that he has blessed the word of his grace proclaimed by his servants in this part of the empire, not only to the salvation of the red man of the forest, but to the instruction and salvation of many of the Anglo-Saxon race, who, but for their labours, there is reason to fear, would not only lose the power of godliness, but, in many cases, the form also.

In addition to the European and half-cast population residing in the regions belonging to the Honourable the Hudson's Bay Company, there is, in the southern department of the territory, an Indian population amounting to upwards of ten thousand souls. Four Missionaries have been stationed at different posts; and short as their sojourn has yet been, the most gratifying results have already in some instances appeared.

SUMMARY.

The principal, or central Mission Stations occupied by the Society in the various parts of the world are about two hundred and forty-five. The Missionaries are three hundred and seventy-one, besides Catechists, Local Preachers, Assistants, Superintendents of Schools, School Masters and Mistresses, and Artizans, of whom upwards of three hundred are employed at a moderate salary, and about four thousand afford their services gratuitously.

The number of communicants on the Mission Stations, according to the latest returns, is 78,504, being an increase of 5,707 on the number reported last year. This total does not include the number under the care of the Missionaries in Ireland.

The number of Scholars in the Mission Schools is between fifty and sixty thousand.

The contributions to the funds of the Society received during the year, though to a greater amount than ever before they had attained, yet is not proportioned to the increased expenditure. The consequence is, that there is a balance due to the Treasurer of the Parent Society of not less than THIRTY-FIVE THOUSAND POUNDS STERLING!!

The proceeds of the various Branch Societies of this District are as follow:—

We cannot forbear most respectfully to entreat the careful and kind attention of the members of this Auxiliary, to the financial condition and prospects of the Parent Society—a topic always seasonable in that general review of its entire state and proceedings which is the proper business of its annual assembly, and the consideration of which is rendered more than ordinarily imperative, by the continued large excess of its expenditure over even its greatly augmented income. Large as the amount required to maintain existing stations, and to increase them, may appear at first sight, we should not despair of seeing it eventually realised.

It is not larger than the claims of God our Saviour upon our gratitude and love. It is not larger than the demands of our immortal fellow-men, whom he redeemed with his most precious blood, but among whom, alas! Christ is not named; upon our actual and effectual sympathies. It is not larger than the amount of contribution for objects so holy and so extensive, to which many of us have solemnly and repeatedly plighted our faith, and promised our full quota of effort, when we have privately and publicly—in the solitude of our closets, and in the presence of a great cloud of witnesses, at religious assemblies like this, consecrated ourselves and our all to God, under strong and stirring impulses of pious affection and feeling. Nor is it larger than the actual means which God has committed to his people, if those means were universally and systematically developed, and conscientiously devoted to their best and highest use. Happy the man who thus honours the Lord with his substance. His work of faith shall not be forgotten—it shall be returned into his own bosom, good measure, pressed down and running over. As, therefore, we have opportunity, let us do good unto all men.
